GIFT FROM COMMUNITY, WHITE ELEPHANT SHOP AMBULANCE IS BUSY IN LEICESTER DISTRICT

Letter Received Discloses Ambulance Is Being Used At Military Hospital There — Directress of Institution Expresses Gratitude For Gift — Driven By Women Volunteers.

The whereabouts of the ambulance presented to the Red Cross Society by the ladies of the White Elephant Shop has been revealed, in a letter received by them. The letter, which speaks for itself, follows:

12 Stoneygate Avenue,
Leicester,
June 29th, 1942.

To the Friends of the Community of Grimsby, from Mrs. J. Milne (Transport Officer Leicester Detachment 84).

Dear Friends:

Leicester has been given the Chevrolet Ambulance so generously sent by your Community. I wondered if you would be interested to hear a little about your ambulance.

It is stationed at the biggest general hospital here, the Leicester Royal Infirmary. Each week day the Service patients are taken from this hospital where they have had operations or treatment, to a lovely old house in the country which is also a hospital for convalescents. The men are usually still in pyjamas and go back to bed at the country hospital till they are well enough to move on to a Red Cross convalescent home. Most of our patients are from the army though we have a few R.A.F. men and very occasionally a sailor. We had one very jolly sailor who had developed pneumonia as he arrived on leave. He was one who had taken part in the Lofoten raid. I will not tell you the units most of the patients come from, the censor would not approve perhaps. We get all types, very often newly joined, Army life seems to find out weaknesses, particularly varicose veins and hernia. The other day one of the patients had been a steward at the Press Club in Fleet Street all through London's blitzes and another had been an Ambulance Driver in Bristol's raids so they have already been more or less in the front line. We sent your Chevrolet to Oxford with a very bad head case to the special brain hospital there. He had a very serious gun shot wound in his head and the job took 12 hours as the driver had to keep stopping to rest the case.

At night should there be a raid the men's section of the Red Cross would take the ambulance to a First Aid Post. The women all have their stations to report to in their own cars to take out stretcher parties and bring back sitting casualties.

We have four voluntary women drivers as there are two other ambulances. A whole time paid man services the vehicles and also helps to drive civilian patients for the hospital in other ambulances. I always send two women as the stretchers are so high, loading and unloading is very difficult and one can keep her eyes firmly on the road while the other cares for the patients.

One woman has her husband a pilot in the Middle East, another runs the business for her husband who is a soldier, the third driver is French and looks after the Free French who need hospitality.

I do not drive a great deal as the others are all so keen but I am always available if anyone should be ill or away. I am quite glad of a free morning sometimes as I pack Prisoners of War Red Cross parcels and do part time sessions at munitions. I have a house with a soldier billet all the time who eats with my husband and myself. Then we have one to three officers sent us from a mess nearby, just for bed and bath. We had two Canadians once. I cultivate two allotments so have plenty to do to keep my mind off the tragedy of this dreadful war.

As you probably know we are all very well fed, plenty of good food, bread excellent and unlimited and everything else sufficient though we should all enjoy more butter and we who do not smoke more sweets. Up to now the

Miss J. R. MacDiarmid, of the girls' camp at the High School, was a guest of the Women's Institute on Tuesday evening. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. A. Caton, Robinson street, south.

Miss MacDiarmid spoke most entertainingly of the girls in the camp and their enjoyment of the work they are doing on the fruit farms in the ideal surroundings of this part of the peninsula.

The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. George Warner, who at the same time welcomed the visitors and new members.

A report on sick and absent friends was presented by the secretary, Mrs. Lester Larsen. The Christmas parcel for the Institute soldier was planned and a sum of money set aside for the purpose. Another parcel was go forward this month. The rug which was on display at the Model Dairy was drawn, the winning ticket being number 228. The Institute will be glad to hear from the winner so that the rug may be sent to her.

Old-time songs by Mrs. Larsen and Mrs. Wm. Layton were a pleasing feature of the evening. Among the favourites were Just a Wearyin' For You, Let the Best of the World Go By, and Jeanie With The Light Brown Hair. Mrs. Layton accompanied.

Squadron Leader Thompson Gets Windsor Command

Following a ten day leave spent at his home here, Squadron Leader Victor W. Thompson left for Windsor, where he assumes command of No. 10 Elementary Flying Training School there. Prior to his recent appointment, Squadron Leader Thompson was in command of No. 3 E.F.T.S. at London, Ontario.

Heavy Wind, Rain Did Little Harm To Local Orchards

Sour Cherries Finished This Week With Little Loss — Peaches Still Hard And Thinning Continues In District.

The last of the sour cherries of this district are being taken out of the orchards this week, and many growers report that they have finished with this crop already. Large quantities of the sour have been taken by the canning companies under contract.

The high winds and rains of last weekend did some damage to the cherries, but not enough to make them unsuitable for canning, according to managers of local canning factories. Some of the fruit appeared to be slightly marked with brown spots, but little of it was turned back from the canneries.

Some of the growers lost part of their crop through the hot sun of Saturday and Sunday which had a tendency to scald the tops of the trees.

The crop, as in the case of the sweet cherries, was exceptionally good, both from the standpoint of quantity and quality. Prices held up well, and growers report that they could not have wanted a better season.

Several apricots crops suffered heavily through the rains last weekend, but this crop is not cultivated extensively, and there is little loss to growers reported. Peaches, still fairly hard, were not harmed, and thinning operations are continuing throughout the district.

Firemen Called

The Grimsby Fire Department was called out to a fire at the Fairview Service Station, on No. 8 Highway west of Grimsby this morning, but on arrival, the fire had been put out. Damage was negligible.

Three Convicted On Charges Levied Saturdays Ago

Being Drunk, Disorderly And Having In Illegal Place Result In Fines At Local Court — Car Driver Assessed $25.

Three court cases heard last Tuesday afternoon by Magistrate J. H. Campbell resulted in three convictions for offences on Saturday night, July 11. The most heavily fined was Gordon Corman, 40 Hurd Ave., Burlington, who paid twenty-five dollars after pleading guilty to a charge of having liquor in an illegal place.

Provincial Constable Elmore Bowen testified that the accused man was found by himself and Chief W. W. Turner in a car on Robinson Street, and that there were twelve bottles of beer seized.

Under questioning by the magistrate, Corman stated that he had bought the beer in Hamilton from a taxi driver whom he could not name.

"A friend of mine bought the beer in Hamilton and I chipped in. We got it at a taxi place. He told us to meet him down the road near a hotel."

"What street was that?" the magistrate asked.

"I don't know, it was the street that runs towards the lake," said Corman.

After getting the beer, Corman and two other men drove to Grimsby, and it was while drinking the beer, according to Constable Bowen, that they were caught.

Gordon Gardner, pleading guilty to being drunk in a public place, paid a fine of $11.

The other charge, that of being disorderly in a public place, resulted in a fine of $10 being levied against Bruce McIntyre of Hamilton and formerly of Grimsby. McIntyre said that he asked a man for a match when a "fellow piled into me."

"I grabbed his leg and he sat down," was the way accused described the incident.

GRIMSBY BEACH GIRL NAMED ASSISTANT TO COUNTY CLERK AT MONTHLY COUNCIL MEETING

Marie Killins Given Post Applied For By 17 — Resolutions From Other Counties Endorsed Calling For More Gas For Councillors And Greater War-time Economy.

Miss Marie Killins, of Grimsby Beach, was appointed assistant to County Clerk and Treasurer W. H. Millward by the Lincoln County Council yesterday. The appointment fills a vacancy which has existed for a month following the resignation of Camby Wismer, the former clerk and treasurer of the county.

Miss Killins, appointment was made from among seven applications received. Ten of these came from St. Catharines, one from Niagara Falls and six from Lincoln County. She started her duties today.

The county council also decided on compensation insurance for county employees, and Lloyds of London received the policy. A policy was held for only road employees in the past.

Several resolutions passed by other counties were considered by the council, two of them were endorsed. One, passed by the Welland county council, urged that enough gasoline be granted the councillors to carry out their civic duties both as councillors and members of war committees.

Also endorsed was a resolution from the County of Prince Edward. Pointing out that the federal government is engaged in a publicity campaign urging people to lower their standard of living, buy war savings stamps, and save salvage, Prince Edward county resolved that "evidence of thrift and frugality should arise in connection with affairs administered by the federal government as a necessary foundation for proper accomplishment of the objectives named as desirable by the federal government," and that "satisfactory steps to prevent waste and to salvage raw materials be taken in connection with air force stations and military and naval establishments to a greater degree than they have been, as a necessary basis for a proper measure of success of voluntary salvage campaigns directed to the general public."

Copies of the resolution had been sent by Prince Edward county to the prime minister, the ministers for naval, military, air and war services, and wartime prices and trade board and all county councils.

Death Of Reeve Is Marked at Meeting Of County Council

Out of respect for the memory of the late Fred McCusker, reeve of Niagara-on-the-Lake, the flag at the county court house, St. Catharines, was at half mast last Tuesday as members of the county council assembled for their regular monthly meeting.

At the outset of the meeting a resolution was passed expressing regret and extending the sympathy of the council to the bereaved family of the late reeve. Warden William Heaslip spoke briefly to the motion.

Teacher From The Bahamas Says Riot Not To Be Talked

"They didn't ask us to deny that the riot took place, but we were asked to lay quiet on it," said Miss Audrey Craig of Grimsby, who recently returned home for her holidays. Miss Craig, who is on the staff of Queen's College, Nassau, Bahamas Islands, was referring to the recent "race riot" which brought an abrupt interruption to the visit which the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were making to Washington.

According to Miss Craig, the newspapers did not have "half the story" of either the riot or the serious fire which swept through a considerable portion of the business section of the island capital.

"We were not told to say nothing about it," she emphasized, "but we were given to understand that it would be better not to describe it or discuss it at length."

Prior to arriving in Grimsby, Miss Craig spent a short while visiting Washington and New York.

CLEAR CREEK AFTER RAINS

Forty Creek, in the vicinity of the sewage disposal plant, will have to be again cleared out, although chloride of lime is now no longer available, and lime will have to be substituted.

At a meeting of the council some weeks ago Mayor Edric Johnson announced that the equipment owned by Lincoln county had been used effectively for this job. Since that time, heavy rains have again made clearing of the creek necessary.

Note Reduction In Juvenile Crime

Juvenile crime, for many weeks a serious problem in this community is almost non-existent at the present time, according to Chief William W. Turner.

"The docket is clear at the present time," was the way in which Chief Turner summed up the situation. He stated that it has been some time now since he has had any juvenile under observation.

Last night the Children's Aid Society representatives from St. Catharines met with Mayor Edric Johnson and Chief Turner to discuss the situation, but at present Mayor Johnson is not at liberty to discuss the meeting, and information regarding it will not be available for a few days yet.

Few Fail To Heed Call For Service In Grimsby Area

A request from the department of National War Services to check up on men called out under the National Resources Mobilization Act has resulted in little action being taken by local police. Of recent weeks a great number of men have been called upon to undergo a medical examination as higher age brackets are being reached, but the requests to local police to check up on men not reporting results usually in reports of men who have moved out of this district or who are unknown here.

Local factories are beginning to feel the shortage of manpower as the call-up regulations are extended to include men up to forty years of age. As a result of this situation, women are now taking the place of men at the Metal Craft Company plant on Depot Street, and, according to A. R. Globe, they are fitting into the work quite well.

Robinson Street Repairs Finished

When the ditches have been finished, the work on the north end of Robinson street made necessary by a severe storm about a month ago will be completed. The south end is yet to be repaired but when this is done it will be a very great improvement to the street. Also the repair work along the Main street in the past two weeks has added greatly to the appearance of the town.

Four In Family In Active Service

Mrs. Margaret M. Wilson, of Grimsby, has now two sons and two daughters in the active army with the recent enlistment of Miss La-Vonne Wilson in the Canadian Women's Army Corps. The others are Sergt. Daniel J. Wilson, who has been overseas for two and one-half years with an anti-aircraft battery; Pte. Joseph H. Wilson, overseas since Christmas day of 1940; and Maud A. Wilson, in the C.W.A.C. Another daughter has made application to join the C.W.A.C. and a son-in-law is also serving overseas.

Play-Off Games In Ball League Held This Week

A play-off plan for the Grimsby-Saltfleet softball schedule was drawn up at a meeting of the league executive held at The Independent office last Thursday evening. The following games have been slated:

Grimsby at Winona, Wednesday, (last night) with return game at Grimsby Friday (tomorrow) evening; Stoney Creek at Stop 69 last Tuesday evening, with a return game at Stoney Creek this (Thursday) evening.

Finals for the league championship will be played off on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights of next week.

Retire Debentures

Twenty year road debentures were retired recently by the County of Lincoln. They were worth $200,000, and brought to $200,000 the amount wiped out this year.

Noah: God's Covenant With Mankind

Genesis 9:1-16

GOLDEN TEXT

I will remember my covenant.—Gen. 9:15.

Introduction to the lesson

The dispensation of conscience, like that of innocence, closed in failure on man's part. For over sixteen hundred years after the expulsion from the garden of Eden, man had been tested under his newly-acquired knowledge of good and evil, only to find that the great majority of the race deliberately chose the evil and ignored the good. True, all through this age the grace of God was working, and wherever men turned to God in faith they were saved and like Abel, Enoch, Noah sought to walk before Him, maintaining a good conscience through obedience to His will.

A Lesson Outline

- The judgment of the flood. (Genesis 6:12).
- God's indignation. (Gen. 9:3).
- The result of unholiness. (Genesis 9:4).
- Judgment announced. (verses 5-7).
- Salvation promised. (verses 8-22).
- Judgment executed. (Genesis 7).
- The new beginning. (Genesis 8).
- The Noahic Covenant. (Genesis 9).

The Heart of the Lesson

When God gives His pledged word He will never call it back. (Isaiah 55:1). When He warned Noah of a coming flood, His word was sure and was fulfilled to the letter. He who brought Noah and his family safely through the flood and established them upon the renewed earth is the resource of His people still. Faith can firmly trust Him. come what may.

A Way Of Life

Close your book of complaints and open the book of praise. Believe other people are quite as sincere as you and treat them with respect. Ignore what life owes you, and stop looking for friendship and start being friendly. Be content with such things as you have and stop whining for the things you have not. Enjoy the simple blessings of life and cease striving for the artificial pleasures of the day. Forget what you have accomplished and meditate on what others have done for you. Cease looking for someone to help you and devote yourself to helping others.

Our Weekly Recipe

It won't be long before we are bringing tomatoes in from our Victory gardens. At first we can eat all there are "as is," then the time comes when we are ready for Tomato soup, and here it is.

Tomato Soup—Cook 1 quart of tomatoes in a quart of boiling water. Place 1 quart of milk in the top of the double boiler and scald over hot water. When the tomatoes are cooked, add a teaspoon of soda and when foaming has stopped, add the hot milk with a generous piece of butter. Salt and pepper to taste.

Cream may be added instead of butter, and less water and more milk if desired.

Brown a few crackers, roll fine, and add to the soup. Serve with small squares of dry toast. Time 30 to 40 minutes.

Apple Lemon Pie

Here is the first apple pie of the season. Take 2 cups chopped apples, 1/2 cup oatmeal, grated rind and juice of 1 lemon, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1/2 cup honey. Mix in the order given, having the eggs well beaten and the fat melted. Put into a unbaked pastry shell, cover with top crust and bake in a moderate oven.

Who Will Bell The Cat?

He who "bells the cat" takes it upon himself to run a great risk for the sake of his fellow citizens. The allusion is to the tale of the cunning old mouse, who suggested that they should hang a bell on the neck of the cat, so that the mice would have due notice of her approach. "Tis an excellent suggestion," said a wise young mouse, "but who is to put the bell on the cat's neck?"

"Bell the Cat" was a name given to a character famous in the history of Scotland, Archibald Douglas, Earl of Angus. The king, James III, had capriciously chosen several men of low degree as his favourites; one of them, a man of trade, he made Earl of Mar. This gave great offence to the haughty members of the nobility. The enraged nobles held a council for the purpose of devising means of putting down the upstarts. "But who will bell the cat?" inquired Lord Gray. "That will I," answered Douglas; and he sought out the hated newcomers and killed them in the very presence of the king. Thereafter he was known as "Bell-the-Cat Douglas."

—Everyday Sayings.

"In the woods, too, a man casts off his years, as the snake his slough, and, at what period soever of life, is always a child. In the woods is perpetual youth. Within these plantations of God a decorum and sanctity reign, a perennial festival is dressed, and the guest sees not how he should tire of them in a thousand years. In the woods we return to reason and faith."

—Emerson.

MAKE JAMS and JELLIES with CERTO

You get up to 2/3 more Jam or Jelly from the Same Amount of Fruit

CERTO is Pectin

Extracted from Fruit

When pectin is used in making jam or jelly, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order No. 150 allows you to use sugar not in excess of one and one-quarter pounds of sugar for each pound of fruit. On the basis that "fruit" means "unprepared" fruit, this allows you to make your jams and jellies the Certo way which gives you approximately two-thirds more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.

The New Curriculum

Beginning with kindergarten and continuing through the primary and junior grades to High School, these new subjects will be taught,—deportment, dancing, playing an instrument in the class orchestra (including the reading of music), French language, citizenship, and instruction in Christian living.

As the primary considerations of the greater part of humanity are food, shelter and clothing, the children should be well grounded in the production and preparation of food, in the building, equipping, care and maintenance of the houses they are to live in, and in the making and care of their own clothing.

When does this new curriculum come into effect? Just as soon as enough good citizens want it for their children.

What The Lady Of The Confederation Period Wore

In 1867 much use was made of artificial flowers of silk and velvet for both hat and hair decorations. They were tucked into the dyed yellow curls (in imitation of the golden hair of the Empress Eugenie) near the ears. Large gold combs, velvet bows and aigrettes were also used as hair ornament, while nets of silk, chenille, or gold-thread mesh incased the coils of hair at the back. The nets were revived within the last year or two, but failed to achieve wide popularity.

Other accessories were elaborately embroidered and lace-trimmed handkerchiefs (these have never gone completely out), jet beaded silk bags, and dainty parasols of moire or batiste with bright coloured linings, and lace-edged or covered entirely with white or black lace. The handies were finished with handsome knobs of carnelian, agate or coral. Small muffs of fur, or of velvet and fur, were important. No evening costume was complete without a pretty fan. Now the fan has been completely effaced by the cigarette.

Quantities of jewellery were worn in 1867, among them jewelled lockets and crosses, which enjoyed a brief return to favour lately. Necklaces, bracelets, rings, watches with long neck chains, and gold bandeaux for the hair found a large following. Metal buttons with coloured stones, were the mode for the front of the bodice.

"To Take Away Strife"

One of the loveliest, and least known, of our wildflowers is Yellow Loosestrife. It is now in bloom in retired situations within our town limits. People who have discovered it in its native haunts covet it for their gardens, but it is not nearly as handsome as when left in its natural surroundings. It grows from two or three feet tall, without branches, and the upper part of the stout stalk supports from twenty to forty large yellow bell-shaped flowers. It is no relation of the splendid Purple Loosestrife.

According to the reputation given to this flower by the Roman naturalist, Pliny, "it is believed to take away strife, or debate between oxen, not only those that are yoked together, but even those who are wild also, by making them tame and quiet, if it be either put about their yokes or their necks, which, how true, I shall leave to them shall try and find it so."

It is not unlikely that Mrs. Simcoe, wife of Governor Sir John Graves Simcoe, found this plant blooming in the self-same spot as it does to-day when she used to visit The Forty. The lady had friends here and often stayed with them between sessions of parliament at Newark (Niagara-on-the-Lake) when that village was the capital of Upper Canada from 1792 to 1797—one hundred and fifty years ago.

A Bird's Nest

In an old school reader, many years ago, there were a few lines of blank verse describing a bird's nest. The recurring spring miracle of nest building brought a couple of the lines back to memory—

"... Mark it well, within, without.

No tool had he that wrought, no knife to cut. . . "—leaving the rest floating about in a mental nebula. Strive as I might I could not call up the other lines. Then followed a search of files of poetical clippings, with no result except an increased determination to run that poem to earth by hook or by crook.

Suddenly I thought of a Boston lady who has all the poetry that ever was at her finger-ends, and appealed for help. She has had a hand in most of the anthologies that have been put together in recent years; more than that, has compiled a very fine one of her own, and has had much to do with the new edition of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations.

Back came the lines, and here they are,—

"It wins my admiration
To view the structure of that little work,
A bird's nest. Mark it well, within, without,
No tool had he that wrought, no knife to cut,
No nail to fix, no bodkin to insert,
No glue to join; his little beak was all.
And yet how neatly finished! What nice hand,
With every implement and means of art,
And twenty years' apprenticeship to boot,
Could make me such another?"

Written by James Hurdis (1763-1801), professor of poetry at Oxford, author of "The Village Curate, and Other Poems", it is probably a fragment of a much longer poem.

Now came the task of finding and identifying the poet. First, Encyclopaedia Britannica was drawn. No results. Everyman's Encyclopaedia furnished the first clue. All it knew of James Hurdis was compressed into four lines: "An Englishman of letters, took holy orders, and in 1791 became vicar of Bishopstone. Such merits as his poems, The Village Curate, etc. possess, may be traced to his friendship with Cowper."

Search for the obscure parish of Bishopstone in the haystack of England came next. Beginning with Volume One of the County Histories, the indices were scrutinized until Sussex was reached. Eureka! The tiny parish of Bishopstone was in Sussex. Moreover, our poet was buried there in the ancient Saxon-Norman church, with its sundial still in the tower. During his stay in Bishopstone the Reverend Mr. Hurdis doubtless was familiar with the working of the tide-mills there, and was lulled to sleep at night by the clacking of the oldest windmill in the county.

We meet him again in Bishopstone, in the same county, which later was the home of another poet, Kipling. The poem, The Village Curate, is a record of Hurdis' thoughts and impressions in his Bishopstone days. It is in blank verse in the manner of Cowper, and would find few readers to-day; we have moved too far from his pensiveness, and an age that does not read "The Village Curate" is hardly likely to reach out for Hurdis. But within its limits "The Village Curate" is considered good, for its description of scenery, as well as for its reflections and its satire.

There is no record in the sketch of Cowper's life, included with the two poems, but this can be taken for granted. It does mention letters passing between them. In the Poems we find an "Epitaph on a free but tame redbreast, a favourite of Miss Sally Hurdis," in six pretty stanzas, written by Cowper under date of March, 1792. Was Sally a daughter of James Hurdis, or his sister? If his daughter, she was quite a small girl when her poem was written for Hurdis was only 38 when he died in 1801, the year following Cowper's death at East Dereham, Norfolk.

Our Weekly Poem

THE PATCHWORK QUILT

She joined the squares with loving care.

And set the dainty stitches,
A thrifty dame in olden days
Of tallow-dips and witches.
And every row of herring-bone
And blocks so neatly shaded
Can tell a story of its own,
Though sadly worn and faded.

This muslin with the lilac sprig
She wore to Sunday meeting
When bashful beaux around the door

Were waiting for her greeting.
I seem to see her slipped feet
(The drowsy sermon over)
Go twinkling out among the graves,
Knee deep in dewy clover.

This little scrap of ivory brae
Her wedding gown disclosed.
And as a gay young wife she wore
This pink brocade with roses
As years the duties multiplied
The colors grew more sober,
Till middle age demurely went
In browns of serene October.

So you can read her quiet life,
From morning's merry matin,
Until you spell the vespers out
In bits of chintz and satin;
And here you know her form was bent,
Her locks were thin and hoary,
For blocks of woollen, black and gray,
And purple, end the story.

—Author Unknown.

"Through the open door
A drowsy smell of flowers—gay
bellis, hyacinth,
And white sweet clover, and shy
mignonette—
Comes faintly in, and silent chorus lends
To the pervading symphony of peace."

—Whittier.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

TAKE CARE OF YOUR CAMERA

Don't take the chance of losing fine snapshots like this because of a camera in need of repair. Have your camera put in good shape now, and make it practice to keep it that way.

KEEPING his camera in good condition is always one of the prime jobs facing every photographer. But it's doubly important now. For just as there is a scarcity of so many other new goods, there is a scarcity in some types of new cameras. And that means we've all got to take care of our present cameras and make them serve us as long as we possibly can.

Keeping a camera operating smoothly isn't difficult if you'll make a habit of taking care of it. One of the greatest enemies of any camera is dirt, so clean your camera regularly, inside and out. For that you'll find a soft brush a big help, or you can actually blow the dirt out with a small rubber syringe—the kind the druggist sells. Clean the lens with soft cosmetic lens tissues, or the kind that camera shops sell for the purpose, or if you prefer you can use a soft, clean lintless cloth. Don't ever try to take the lens apart—you may damage it seriously.

Speaking of "dents" in camera care, don't try to oil or grease any part of the camera. It doesn't need it. Next, don't ever try to force your camera if it fails to operate properly; or if it is broken, don't try to repair it yourself. Those two items are among the principal causes of hopelessly damaged cameras. If your camera is badly stuck, or needs repair, by all means take it to your dealer, and let him place it in the hands of a competent camera mechanic. And don't expose your camera to the effects of sun, rain, and sand.

Finally, it's a wise plan to send any good camera back to the manufacturer for cleaning and incidental repairs at least once every two years. And, keep it in its case always—for better protection. Take care of your camera and it will never fail you when you're set to make fine snapshots like this week's illustration.

RADIO SPOTLIGHT

DIALING WITH DAVE

Canadian born Raymond Massey is one of the nation's most versatile actors, on call by both radio and theatre. Recently, he starred in "The Farmer" in the first program in Stephen Vincent Benet's "Dear Adolph" series. (NBC-Red Sundays at 5:00 p.m.) Star of "Abe Lincoln", "Candida" and other stage and screen plays, Massey's part in the recent play was more or less tailored to measure. He was born and raised on a farm, and for a while, before his distinguished stage career began, sold agricultural machinery.

The trouble with most guys that run programs is that they wait till the last minute to decide on a guest star. There's some excuse for an occasional lapse; it happens to everybody. But Bill Stern, ace sportscaster, is proud to have you know that he has his guest star set for the August 8th broadcast of his famous "Sports Newscast". It's Cornelius McGillicuddy, otherwise and more familiarly known as Connie Mack, beloved dean of organized baseball. Every year the genial Mr. Mack, as youngsters on the Philadelphia Athletics call him, makes an appearance on Stern's show. It's usually his only radio show of the year, so sports fans eagerly await the date!

Some very human happenings in local as well as national radio, bring back to mind the fact that radio personalities and stars—writers, producers and 'voices', are human beings like the rest of us. And often it is co-incidence, that impresses this fact strongly on our minds. Take for instance the case of the militant "Woman Who Speaks on War" each Monday night at 11:15 from CKOC in Hamilton. On July 20th she celebrated the completion of two years on the air; fighting for freedom with her pen and her voice. On the preceding Friday, her 22 year old son received his wings at Trenton, taking to the air to fight for freedom! Thus the story—and thus more fight and spirit than ever in each Monday 11:15 p.m. broadcast from the woman who speaks on war.

MERRY-GO-ROUND MAKERS NOW BUILDING AIRPLANES, BOMBERS

From frivolous to practical; that's a sign of the times. A famous manufacturer of merry-go-rounds has turned shop and staff to making arms and parts for airplanes and bombers.

Men who had spent a quarter of a century carving out horses' heads for merry-go-rounds, or painting modernistic designs on a silver-streak thrill ride, have gone prosaic and switched over to lathe work or die casting.

Fortunately, merry-go-rounds are durable articles. Such a change-over to war production will not affect the highlight of holiday and picnic pleasures for many seasons.

JAM MADE BY SUGAR QUOTA EVEN BETTER, EXPERTS CLAIM

Department of Agriculture
Home Economists Issue
Tested Recipes

One of the big war jobs facing women in town and country this summer is canning, jam and jelly making.

It has always been considered a good thing to put up fruit and insure variety in next winter's diet but this year the clatter of preserving kettles has a patriotic ring. Nowadays it is vitally necessary to conserve food, for no one can tell what calls will be made on Canada by the United Nations at war.

Fruit has to be put up this year under the sugar rationing order laid down by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. This allows 1/4 pound of sugar per pound of fruit for canning, and 1/2 pound of sugar per pound of fruit for jam and jelly making. This, of course, means per pound of fruit as it is purchased, or picked from the trees, not after it has been pitted and prepared for the preserving kettle. In order to get the special canning sugar ration, the grocer must be told the weight of fruit which is being "put up" and the purchaser will be asked to sign a special voucher for the sugar bought.

Miss Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture reports that many women write to her office asking if it is possible to make a good jam that "keeps" within the sugar quota. "Our answer to that is emphatically, Yes", says Miss Pepper. "In fact, we feel that these new jams made on the sugar allowance are not only better for health but they have a truer fruit flavor and better color than the old-fashioned 'pound for pound', or sweeter still, the 'cup for cup' jam."

For days, that have extended far into the evenings, experts of the Consumer Section have been working hard testing out recipes made under the new sugar orders. Here are some of those which they have approved and according to Miss Pepper if the directions are followed exactly, housewives can rest assured that their products will be good:

Raspberry Jam

2 quarts raspberries
3 cups sugar
Crush fruit and simmer 10 minutes. Then add sugar and cook until thick—about 25 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately 2 1/2 pints.

A delicious jelly-like jam may be made by putting 2 teaspoons cider vinegar with the sugar in the above recipe. It produces a slightly tart jam.

Raspberry and Red Currant Jam

2 quarts raspberries
1 cup red currant juice
3 1/2 cups sugar
To make currant juice, crush 1 1/2 cups currants slightly and cover them with 1/2 cup water. Cook until the currants are soft and mushy—about 10 to 15 minutes. Drain through a moist jelly bag.

Cover the raspberries with the 1 cup red currant juice and let stand 20 minutes. Simmer raspberries and juice 20 minutes then add sugar. Cook about 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately 2 1/2 pints.

Gooseberry Jam

2 quarts gooseberries
1 1/2 cups water
4 1/2 cups sugar
Top and tail the gooseberries. Simmer the fruit and water for 10 minutes. Add sugar and cook for about 1/2 hour. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately 3 1/2 pints.

This jam is quite thin when hot but it thickens considerably when it cools.

If desired, one-half cup honey or corn syrup may be added to the recipe if it is too tart for your taste.

Black Currant Jam

2 quarts black currants
1 1/2 cups water
4 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup honey
Top and tail the black currants. Simmer the fruit and water for 10 minutes. Add sugar and honey and cook about 15 minutes or until thick. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: 3 1/2 pints.

This makes a thick, jelly-like jam.

PICNIC TRUCK BAN GIVES DOBBIN A BREAK

"Remember! It was in the summer of 1941 that we all piled into the truck to drive over to the picnic grounds. Those were the days."

Soon remarks like that will be on the lips of many Canadians for the days are past when trucks can be used for such frivolous activities as picnics, visits to fairs or community concerts. For pleasure driving—get a horse.

Trucks must be made to last as long as possible so government wartime regulations demand that they be used only for essential purposes. Farm trucks should be used only for transporting produce but the farmer can still take his wife to market because he is allowed to have two people drive in the cab with him.

Black Currant Jelly

To each quart of black currants add 4 cups water. Crush currants and boil until soft and mushy. Strain juice through a moist jelly bag. Measure juice and boil for 6 minutes. For each cup of original juice add 1 cup sugar and boil until it sheets from a spoon—approximately 6 to 10 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin.

Red Currant Jelly

Mash 2 quarts red currants and add 4 cups water. Boil until currants are soft and mushy. Strain juice through a moist jelly bag. Measure juice and boil for 6 minutes. For each cup of original juice add 1/2 cup sugar and boil until it sheets from a spoon—5 to 8 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin.

Red Currant and Raspberry Jelly

Crush 1 quart raspberries and add 1/2 cup water. Boil for 10 minutes or until fruit is soft and mushy. Drain through moist jelly bag. Yield: 1 1/2 cups juice.

Mash 3 cups red currants and add 1 cup water. Boil for 10 minutes or until fruit is soft and mushy. Drain through moist jelly bag. Yield: Approximately 1 1/2 cups.

Combine 1 1/2 cups each of red currant and raspberry juice and boil 10 minutes. Add 2 1/2 cups sugar and boil until it reaches the jelling stage—approximately 6 minutes.

BOTTLES NEEDED BADLY

Owing to labor shortage, bottles are now badly needed, so badly that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued an order making it an offence wilfully to destroy any bottles fit for use. Salvage agencies are also in the market for all kinds of broken glass, including bottle, window and plate glass which can be ground up and re-manufactured. Search house, garage and other buildings for unused bottles and get them to your nearest salvage disposal agency.

Snacks Should Be Nourishing

These vacation days when children come 'round the kitchen for mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks, mothers would do well to see that something nourishing is on hand so that young bodies will have extra health and resistance built up when school begins again.

A glass of milk with raisin-filled cookies or tomato juice and Graham wafers are tasty alternatives with plenty of goodness, or a packet of peanuts and raisins make a convenient hand-out.

A good sandwich filler is made of peanut butter thinned with milk and mixed with chopped raisins. Put in a cool place this will keep for several days. Spread on whole wheat bread, it makes a nutritious sandwich for a lunch box as well as a snack. Sandwich cheese mixture spread on nut bread is also very nutritious.

Any between-meal eating should merely supplement the day's diet and should not be regarded as sufficient to stand alone advises Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health. It should provide enough energy to offset that tired feeling but should not be large enough to spoil the appetite for the next meal.

Christianity is not a theory or speculation, but a life, not a philosophy of life, but a life and a living process.—Coleridge.

Treasure In Salvage

And for the general reader there were turn-of-the-century copies of such popular magazines as Good Housekeeping, the Saturday Evening Post and others. Of course, there were modern publications represented in profusion, and it might not be hard to imagine that, being taken over now, some of the more highly thought of, such as the Atlantic, Harpers and others might become, as the years go on, even rarer than those issued two or three score years ago.

It was not until the Russians felt the first shock of Germany's armed might that their tune was changed. Russia, in Poland and in the Baltic States of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, had played the part of the ruthless aggressor. She also made an abortive attempt at overrunning Finland. Russia, being a dictatorship, was subject to the whims of one man greedy for power just as was Germany. The ferocity and tremendous bravery of the Russian armies is great. The world stands in admiration of the Russian soldiers as they fight with their backs to the wall. The bravery of the German soldiers, pushing deep into the Don valley and suffering ter-

It is high time that the authorities stopped living in delusion regarding these blackout tests. If the whole countryside cannot participate in them, they are useless. If the time ever came when the authorities deemed a blackout necessary, they would not hesitate about having Grimsby, Stoney Creek, Oakville and other towns turn off their lights. The people in the larger communities will, in that event, know what to do, but those living in the villages and towns, by their lack of experience, will be contributing to the efforts of enemy airmen rather than making their assignments more difficult.

Five thousand Toronto girls turned out for a blind date with soldiers last week. If their dancing was on a par with much that has been seen in recent months, we can presume that the boys were in training as commando troops.

Beaver Club

The members of the Beaver Club of St. John's Presbyterian church held their July meeting in the form of a picnic on the grounds at the Grimsby Waterworks. As it is a busy time of the year for the housewives the turn-out was not as large as had been anticipated but those present thoroughly enjoyed the bounteous picnic luncheon. In the evening the ladies attended the local theatre after which the party adjourned to the home of Mrs. Reg. Slatter, Depot street, where a very enjoyable social time was spent.

The Sugar Sack
Is Safe

It is was a false alarm. Housewives may continue to use sugar sacks, cotton feed and flour sacks for pillow cases, sheets, aprons, etc.

Recently when a request was issued to preserve all bags and turn them back for re-use to prevent a threatened shortage, J. Bonar, director of coarse fabrics, probably found himself facing the saddest questioning but uncomplaining eyes of a whole Dominion-full of thrifty housewives. He saved himself by stating that a good purpose would be served by granting permission to make use of cotton bags in accordance with time-honoured custom.

"To discontinue these uses," he said, "might quite conceivably create some unnecessary hardship." So women will still be able to fill the linen cupboard, line quilts, and clothe themselves and their families with their pet perquisite, the empty flour and sugar sack.

The shortage referred to burlap sacks.

Don't Force Your Children To Eat

Visitors to French Canada are always impressed with the glib habit of vivacity at table. Mealtimes should be happy times when the family sits down in amiable sociability. Eupeptic is the word for it—and we have a trip to the dictionary. At mealtimes, don't worry about unpaid bills, scold the children, or gnaw on bones of contention. All the vitamins in the world won't help you or your children if the occasion is so unhappy as to impair digestion. Warm up that gloomy, cold-potato atmosphere.

Other Don't's

Don't spoil mealtime by forcing children to eat. If a child is seriously underweight there is likely enough an organic cause and it is wiser to consult your physician. Perhaps he's too excited with life to feel like settling down to a meal: after all, life is pretty exciting to youngsters whose genial currents have not been frozen by the anfractuosités of life! Or the child may be a bit upset or too tired. Let him alone: scolding or nagging won't help and may make him so resentful that he may go on a partial hunger strike.

Spiking the Appetite

Appetites are sure to decline if you serve the same dishes over and over again. It's too easy to fall into the habit of always serving the identical combination of dishes—such as sole slaw with stew or pan potatoes with a roast. For a change accompany stew with a green salad with a favourite dressing. Or with a roast, au gratin potatoes or baked onions that have been glazed with a little honey to give them eye appeal.

Conditioned reflexes make our mouths water when we smell the robust aroma of sausage in the skillet, while the word protein leaves us cold. The advice to eat one leafy green vegetable and one citrus food every day doesn't rouse our appetite like it would if we put it this way: Think of the leafy green vegetable as tender, fresh broccoli sprinkled with grated cheese. Sounds better, doesn't it? And for citrus fruit imagine a salad of orange and grapefruit sections with some of our local fruits in season, served with a dash of a tart French dressing. Think of sauces* and dressings in due proportion to the bulkier parts of a meal, remembering what George Meredith had his bright young hero say:—

"The woman who has mastered sauces is sitting on the very apex of civilization."

If you have not already done so, the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, invites you to write for a free vitamin chart which may be hung in the kitchen as an aid to navigation on the course of health.

—And gravies—homely dishes like swiss steak earn the plaudits of gourmets with addition of the merest soupçon of vinegar and a conservative dash of mustard.

"Tomorrow to fresh woods, and pastures new."—Milton.

Nominations for vacancy caused by death of the late William Chivers, Sr., were held in the council chambers on Wednesday evening. Two were named for the vacancy, H. G. Mogg, nominated by I. E. Hummel and E. H. Erb and B. W. Shantz, nominated by Robt. Moxley and Wm. Ard. Those nominated, under the municipal act, have until the following evening at nine o'clock to qualify but Mr. Shantz when communicated with stated positively that he would not stand for election so that H. Good Advice

Someone has said that one good thing about advice is that you only have to take what you want of it. So help yourself. This time it's vinegar.

Window glass, windshields, drinking glasses and all other articles of glass will be made bright if vinegar is added to the water used in washing them. In the case of windows, add a cup of vinegar to two cups of lukewarm water and apply with a chamois. Wring the chamois dry and wipe the window, which should dry clean and quickly.

Vinegar will cut paste or glue. If you've pasted something in the wrong column of your scrapbook, moisten it with a brush dipped in vinegar and you can slip it off easily. Try it when postage stamps are stuck together with the heat.

To remove lime deposits from vases or enameled or china vessels, use ordinary vinegar.

Remove putty or paint from window glass by first using a cloth dipped in very hot vinegar, then scraping with a knife or razor blade.

Soak green vegetables in vinegar and water instead of the usual salt and water. The vinegar brings the unwanted inhabitants to the surface so they are easily removed.

Hard, dry paint brushes can be cleaned by letting them simmer in vinegar for about ten minutes.

OAK FOR SCHOOL DESKS USED FOR SPEED BOATS

If boys and girls are finding that they can easily carve their initials into their desks these days, it is because the hard oak, which used to go into school furniture is now needed to make tough ribs for torpedo boats and plane parts.

The long arm of war regulations has now reached into the school room, according to the W.P.T.B.'s Division of Simplified Practice. Not only has hard oak been dropped for school furniture but the types made have been cut from 127 to 67.

Before making changes in school furniture manufacture, not only were the Departments of Education consulted but also school architects. The government made sure that the health and efficiency of the pupils would not be impaired by unsuitable school room equipment.

After reading the doctrines of Plato, Socrates, or Aristotle, we feel that the specific difference between their words and Christ's is the difference between an inquiry and a revelation.—Joseph Parker.

Grimsby Beach, suffered cuts to face and chest injuries. Both cars were damaged.

Francis Craig, 11 year old Grimsby boy, was seriously injured at Grimsby a few days ago when knocked down by a cyclist on Ontario Street. He remained unconscious throughout the night.

COLORFUL UNIFORMS ARE NOW TRANSFERRED INTO PRACTICAL KHAKI SUITS FOR FIGHTING MEN

"The thin red line" of Britain's earlier wars has given way to the far more practical, if less colorful khaki hue. Resplendent were the uniforms of Wellington's day and as late as the Great War, Scottish troops—known to Jerry as "The Ladies from Hell"—went into action in gay Tartan kilts.

Reluctant, indeed, was the soldier to part with his attractive regalia. But military strategists were quick to realize that in modern warfare with long range weapons and the searching eyes of reconnaissance planes, bright colors were out. Khaki has become the order of the day for all army combat purposes.

As the art of warfare has become more complex so, too, has the army's warfare. Canada's army has uniforms for every occasion and job.

Best known perhaps is the battle dress, designed, as its name implies for training and combat purposes. Over this goes a white jacket and parka when the occasion calls for it, and the wearer, the ski trooper, equipped with skis and white mitts is well camouflaged with his background of snow.

Warm and comfortable is the winter driver's suit, worn by drivers and guards in exposed positions.

One of the weirdest-looking uniforms is that worn for protection against gas. When the wearer dons his cape, respirator and helmet he looks akin to an Orson Welles creation.

More conventional is the white outfit worn by cooks and mess waiters. It is a white uniform similar to those worn in corresponding civilian duty.

The summer camp dress involves the use of puttees, light fabric sun helmet, short sleeved shirt and short trousers.

Convalescent hospital cases wear blue suits with regulation cap and shoes.

There are also special firefighters' suits, transport drivers' suits, tank corps clothing, water transport outfits and other special service clothes.

And for off-duty hours, the soldier has now his summer walking-out uniform, complete with collar and tie and back oxford shoes. There are not yet enough of these to go around but it is hoped that in the near future the demand will be met.

Salvaged Household Fats Serve Many War Purposes

Inedible household fats saved and disposed of through local salvage agencies have many uses in industry, in addition to supplying glycerine for explosives, the chief purpose for which fat salvaging was begun. Glycerine is only a small percentage of the fats and one of the ways to get it is by first using the fats to make soap.

Soap itself is an indispensable part in the manufacturing processes of many major industries. It is used in cleaning, scouring, and bleaching and for many steps in the processing of various kinds of fabrics. Its uses are numerous in the processing of metal, mostly in the cleaning processes. The war will take some of the fats you save in the casing of shells as well as the explosives inside.

Soap has an important place in some of the paper-making processes, and in some cases, in the "sizing" spread over the paper to give it smoothness.

In shoes and all leather products soap is used to impart suppleness and strength.

Fat in the form of stearic or fatty acids is used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber. It is also a major ingredient in paints and varnishes.

Finally lubricating oils and grease for every kind of machinery in every kind of plant need fats.

When utensils or filling some other civilian need.

Then, too, officials point out, many cheap articles never were manufactured in Canada but were imported from Japan or Central Europe and these, of course, are off store shelves for the duration.

Low Price Goods Stay In Production

Wartime Prices And Trade Board Acts To Protect Consumers

Headaches are chronic these days. Generals have them and so have Prime Ministers. Producers have them and so do consumers. The cause can be found in the problem of supplies—supplies for the armed forces, supplies for munitions plants, supplies for manufacturers.

Until recently it looked as if this problem of supplies were going to give one of the nastier headaches to consumers—at least to those people living on low incomes. They were worried. If there were not going to be enough supplies to meet everyone's needs, would the "little man" be the one to go without? But this month the Wartime Prices and Trade Board came out with an emphatic "No". If it can do any thing about it the "little man" is not going to take the rap any more than anyone else. In fact if anyone is going to get a break, he will be the one.

The Board is taking steps to see that at least some of the cheaper lines remain on the store shelves and that the quality of those goods is maintained so far as is possible.

From now on when industry is told to reduce the variety of its products—to cut its lines of goods from say 25 to six, it will also be instructed to maintain lines at various price levels, in fact the tendency will be to cut down higher priced articles. This is being done to make sure that the six lines left to the manufacturer will not all be at high price levels.

The lack of supplies for manufacturers means that it will be increasingly difficult to produce certain types of goods, and it is likely that many may not be back on the market until the war is over. Some articles formerly could be obtained cheap because there were surplus stocks, but that is no longer the case. Many mass production factories were easily converted to war purposes and now are making gun parts instead of kit-

Car Storage Tip Are Outlined

There is some argument these days over back fences and cracker barrels as to what John Q. Motorist should do when the sad day arrives when he is forced to lay up the family chariot—for the winter months or for the duration, as the case may be.

To help settle the argument, and because a modern automobile represents a sizeable investment, here's what those who know automobiles best have to say about car storage.

First the lubrication of the car should be checked. If it has not been greased during the last 500 miles driven it should be completely lubricated before storage. The transmission and differential should be filled to correct level.

Preparation of the engine for the lay-up is, of course, most important and careful attention to the details listed will be well worthwhile. The engine should be run until warm and then shut off and the cooling system drained immediately. When cool again, the spark plugs should be taken out and a tablespoonful or two of engine oil put in each cylinder to protect the valves and all surfaces. Turn the engine over with the starter a few times before replacing spark plugs.

Next drain the gas tank—if there is any left—and disconnect the gas line to fuel pump and the fuel line from gas pump to carburetor. Drain all gas from fuel pump and carburetor and blow out lines with air.

The air cleaner element should be removed and dipped in light oil. Inside and outside of air cleaner should also be coated with oil. If the car has an oil bath air cleaner the oil in the sump should be removed and the same procedure followed as for the regular type air cleaner.

Breather cap should be dipped in light oil. On cars with oil filters the oil should be removed, the cartridge cleaned and wrapped for storage, and the shell wiped out. The cover and gasket should be replaced but not tightened.

Tension on generator and fan belt should be relaxed. Clutch shaft splines should be lubricated and the clutch pedal depressed enough to release the clutch. A small wooden block placed between the pedal arm and the toe board will hold the pedal in position.

Storage of the storage battery is another problem. It should be taken out of the car and placed in a dry, cool place away from excessive heat and sunshine. The specific gravity should be checked at least once a month and should the reading drop below 1250 a booster

Buttons, Planes, Cheese Choice of Canadians

Which would you rather have, buttons, cheese or airplanes? Great Britain would rather have planes and cheese and that is one reason why the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has cut out the use of 20,000,000 buttons on clothing. Many buttons are made from casein, which is a milk product, and it is also used in airplane manufacture.

It is estimated that enough casein has been saved under the clothing simplification orders to supply Britain with 25,000 pounds of cheese.

"He that hath a trade hath an estate; and he that hath a calling hath a place of profit and honor. A ploughman on his legs is higher than a gentleman on his knees."—Franklin.

charge should be given.

What tires there are left, if any, can be cared for very simply. The car should be jacked up and only enough air left in the tires to maintain their shape. The tires should not be exposed to sunlight and are better if covered in some way. Other rubber on the car such as door weatherstrips, windshield rubbers and back window rubbers can be protected by a thin film of castor oil.

Car manufacturers also advise that the car be washed and polished; that it be protected from sunlight; that it is best to cover the body and wax the bright metal; that upholstery should be protected from moths; that windows be left tightly closed and make sure that the hand brake is fully released.

Newest Canadian Pacific Diner Serves Maritimes

ATTRACTIVE to a degree and efficiently modern, the Canadian Pacific Railway company's newest addition to its fleet of dining cars is the Canterbury, which was especially designed and constructed as an answer to the heavily increased traffic on the important Canadian Pacific line between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. Four fine pictures of historic Maritime scenes are displayed in the car, a note of compliment to the district which the car will serve.

Soon to go into service on the short line connecting Canada's Metropolis and the Atlantic Seaboard, the Canterbury is beautifully finished throughout in natural satin finish birch. Tables and chairs are also of natural finish birch, the chairs also being covered with brown morocco leather. The heating pipe grilles, window sills and rods, and the curtain boxes are of gleaming stainless steel, the curtain boxes serving both to cover the roller curtains and to conceal an individual light over each table. Comfortably spaced, the tables are arranged in the customary manner and provide accommodation for thirty diners simultaneously. The floor of the main room is covered with a rug, brownish in tone, and the floor in the passageways is covered with red-tone parboiled oak.

Women travellers who visit the kitchen will find it as bright and clean as their own kitchens at home, painted light buff and the lower portion a light brown while the table tops are of monel metal. The kitchen is 30 feet, seven inches by six feet, eight inches, and equipment includes an insulated range, charcoal broiler, refrigerator, ice chests, meat trays, storage space, several sinks and a variety of cupboards. An innovation is that the overhead lockers are equipped with a device which locks a complete row with one lock instead of individual locks for each compartment.

An attractive buffet at the entrance to the dining room is of plain natural birch, while this finish is also employed in the steward's roomy office at the opposite end of the car from the kitchen.

Heating for the car is thermostatically controlled.

TAIL-WAGGER CHATS

HOW WE TRAINED OUR DOG

A Reformed Character

By PHILOKOUON

Last week's Chat brought us to the parting of the ways—either we had to make a gentleman of our Labrador or get rid of him. For there was no fun in keeping a dog that was a worry rather than a pleasure. Deciding to have a try, we set about teaching him seriously. Knowing that he came of a breed distinguished for its high intelligence, that could be trained to be the best of dogs, we argued that it would be our fault if we could not turn him into a satisfactory companion with gifts beyond those exhibited by ordinary dogs. First we had to persuade him that we had an individuality that made us more to him than others. This we achieved by talking to him and having him always with us.

Next he had to be weaned of the habit of wandering off after any scent that was peculiarly enticing. Immediately he paused to investigate anything I whistled or called "Here" if he was near enough to hear without my voice having to be raised. Bawling at a dog in a voice that increases in volume as the command is ignored is not a dignified proceeding. A whistle is preferable at any time. Should there have been no notice taken I would go back and say "No. Bad dog. Come along," and perhaps tap him to emphasize the order. If he followed, it was a point gained and I handed out praise freely. "Good dog. That's a good dog." Perhaps my object would have been achieved more quickly if he had been rewarded with a bit of biscuit, but I thought of his disappointment on the cessation of the practice.

In the course of a week or two the improvement in his conduct was marked, though, naturally, there were lapses. If he still diverged on the track of something that interested him I would put him on the lead for a few minutes, checking the least inclination to dwell on a scent with a quiet "No." Everything was done quietly to avoid making him nervous and also for my own self-respect. Well, this curriculum has worked out satisfactorily, but it took time and patience, but the effort has not been grudged. It was worth doing to get a dog that was no longer a nuisance to us. An eye has to be kept on him when there is much traffic about, lest he should stray into the road after another dog. With all his accomplishments, he has not acquired sufficient road sense to make him safe. His idea being that motor cars will await his convenience. A reprimand makes him attentive for a time at any rate.

He is no bother in trains or when we go shopping, just sitting down until our business is finished. As we are living in a hotel he has to be taught not to get in the way. As soon as my wife or I sit down he lies close to our chair and remains there. Strangers coming in to the lounge are surprised when, after a time they find a dog there, and comment upon his good behaviour. That is a comparatively simple lesson to teach. During the night he sleeps under my bed and never attempts to move until he sees that I have finished dressing and am ready to go out.

NOTE.—This chat is based by The Tail-Waggers' Club, 356-360 Gray's Inn Road, London, W.C.1. The Club will be pleased to answer any enquiries submitted by Tail-Wagger owners in connection with canine hygiene and welfare.

CANADIAN BOMBERS BOUND FOR RENDEZVOUS WITH ENEMY

Rolling off the assembly line in a Canadian aircraft plant, these twin-engined Boingbroke bombers are moving swiftly toward a rendezvous with the enemy. Production of bombers, fighting and training aircraft in Canada has grown to impressive proportions since the early days of the war when the Canadian aircraft industry was in a pioneer stage. Canadian workmen are turning out five types of training planes, supplying the vast British Commonwealth Air Training Plan; two types of service planes, which are regarded as first class fighting machines, and the Link trainer for preliminary ground instruction.

J. B. PRIESTLY DISPELS SOME CURRENT WAR RUMOURS ON BRITAIN'S WARTIME EXISTENCE

Famed British Novelist and Commentator Discusses Rationing, Blackouts, Transport and Work On His Broadcast To This Continent.

From Britain Speaks, Broadcast June 18, 1942.

EVERY time I talk with anybody who has just returned from the United States, he or she always asks me to stress in my broadcasts what war means to the average British citizen. I am always told that folks overseas still do not understand our war conditions. They imagine, I am told, that we are still living one kind of life, when in fact we are living a very different kind of life. You ought to make all this quite clear, these people just back from the United States say to me.

I therefore am going to correct, simply and forcibly, some misconceptions that I am told by our most recent arrivals from the United States are fairly common overseas.

First, Clothes Rationing: I myself read some months ago in a famous American weekly an article that gave quite a false impression of rationing in Britain. I don't mean that the writer deliberately misrepresented the situation. But I do mean that in order to be amusing and dramatic the writer distorted the whole situation.

Thus, for instance, he suggested that second-hand clothes are not rationed as new clothes are. He had found one or two shops that were really selling new clothes that passed as second-hand clothes, therefore, this rationing of clothes was a farce.

This is completely misleading. Clothes rationing here isn't a farce at all. It has worked well. Nobody in my family, nobody I have ever talked to, has ever tried to get round the clothes rationing by buying second-hand garments that are really new ones. I have no hesitation in saying that this suggestion was nonsense.

Secondly, The Rationing of Food: It is true that at one time a fairly large black market existed which enabled the well-to-do to eat pretty well. But that black market is rapidly dwindling and, it must be remembered, it never did affect the country at large very much. It operated chiefly in and for the West End of London is no more Great Britain than Fifth Avenue is the United States.

Probably the best way to give you some notion of our food rationing is to be direct and personal about it. Now I am not a poor man, and as you may guess from my appearance or even perhaps from my voice, I am a man who enjoys a good dinner. So that you may bet your boots that I am going to take my share of any decent food that's going. I have had just one small piece of steak, about three inches square, in the last twelve months. I have not had a single lamb or mutton chop. I do not think I have had even one square inch of fried ham. In normal times I eat plenty of fruit, but now of course there just isn't any fruit. Oranges go to our children. Cream vanished long ago. I have a sweet tooth but I do not suppose that I have a bit of dessert that seems to be anything like sweet enough, more than once every two or three weeks.

We aren't hungry and we are pretty healthy but, except on a few special occasions, dining is no longer much of a pleasure. All the best food, especially the best meat, goes to our men in the services, and of course nobody grumbles about that.

At 3 A.M. I Walk

Now For Transport: This is getting tough, and if you feel like grumbling about your new restrictions just remember ours. From July 1 on there is no such thing as private motoring in this country. Any use of gasoline for purposes of pleasure will get you into trouble at once. Taxi cabs and bus services have been cut down and are being cut down still further.

Nobody knows much more about this than I do, or about the situation in the country. When I broadcast to overseas audiences I have to do it late at night. I'll tell you how I get to and from the studio—I walk. I am supposed to be doing a fairly important piece of national service, but I am not allowed the use of a car, nor any gasoline. At three in the morning I walk.

Our train services are being cut down too, with the result that most long distance trains are very crowded indeed. Travelling to the Midlands the other day to make a speech, I had to stand five hours in a packed corridor. Furthermore, I never take much baggage, no more than I can carry myself, because porters are exceedingly scarce.

Next, Hours of Work: It stands to reason that we could not have mobilized so many men and women and raised our war production to such a stupendous height without enormously increasing our hours of work. Most people are working at least one-and-a-half times the amount that they worked before the war. In addition, nearly everybody is doing some other job of national service. Most people are hard at it from morning till night at least six days a week.

I don't myself consider this any great hardship. The best way to get through a period of total war successfully is, to my mind, to be as busy as possible doing what you feel are useful jobs. If you're in it you might as well be in it up to the neck.

Now About The Blackout: I was astonished to hear the other day from a man who had just returned from the United States that fifty per cent of the Americans he talked to did not realize that we here have a nightly blackout which really is a blackout. But of course we do. We've had an almost total blackout from dusk to dawn for thirty-four months now, and most of us have forgotten what outdoor lights look like. I for one am quite used to finding my way about London in an ebony darkness or, at best, a faint glimmer of starlight. Out in the country, because there still might be an invasion, there are no signposts to tell you the way, so that unless you know the road quite intimately you simply can't drive at night. All this is still necessary, even though, for the time being, the Luftwaffe can't organize the big blitz period raids.

What We Are Paying For This War: Nearly all the workers in factories pay income tax for the first time in their lives and, in addition, our indirect taxation such as the duties on sugar, tobacco, liquor and the heavy purchase taxes on goods of all kinds, is very high indeed. The combined income and surtax on larger incomes, has reached a truly fantastic proportion. I lived very comfortably before the war. Now it would be quite impossible for me to earn

Scrap Blitz Is War's Substitute For Old Time Barn-Raising Bee

The days of the barn-raising bee are not so remote that the people of rural districts have forgotten the good times they had at those gatherings. In many communities a revival of this custom will tie in with the National Salvage drive—the scrap-blitz to collect the 600,000 tons of scrap needed to keep Canadian steel mills rolling during the next 12 months.

On many farms are discarded implements, machines and boilers too large and heavy to be delivered to collecting depots by individual effort.

Local committees might organize "bees" so that this material will get on its way to mills and factories. At the same time they will bring back for a day at least, some of the good times and the feeling of helpful service rendered which attended these gatherings of a less strenuous period.

enough money to leave me enough, after paying taxes, to live at that rate.

No matter how successful anyone may have been before the war he realizes that he will have to start all over again after the war. There is nothing to grumble at in that. Believing that the bad old world can be replaced by a new and much better world I am delighted, even if it means that every single thing I ever possessed vanished with that old world.

Then World Would Be Wealthier

I am beginning to understand, at last, that national wealth consists of resources and labor and not of financial figures in books. This may mean that, at the end of this war, we shall realize that the world has developed its resources, and organized and improved its labor. Then the world is potentially wealthier than ever—and that men have only to co-operate sensibly, and to stop snarling, plotting and grabbing, to enjoy that real wealth.

Meanwhile, please accept my assurance that the people of this island are geared, as never before in their history, to fight this war to a finish. I believe our fighting men have never been tougher. I believe our workers have never before made such colossal efforts. I believe our whole civilian population is willingly and thankfully making the innumerable sacrifices demanded of it.

Though we may differ on this problem and that, for we are no driven herd but a company of democratic men and women with minds of our own, I believe that never before as a nation have we been so single-minded and so devoted to one common task: the complete extinction of nazism, fascism, Japanese militarism and all such enemies of the free mind and of the free heart.

WHAT THE PARROT SAID PROVED SOUND ADVICE

"Good-bye, and don't forget your War Savings Certificates!" Believe it or not, these were the parting words of a parrot as it was being placed aboard the express car. The bird was enroute to Riviere du Loup, Que., to join the family of Col. J. Hervey Hough, summering on the Lower St. Lawrence.

According to Harry H. Whiteman, terminal agent, the parrot was talkative and while waiting for the train, repeated almost verbatim the talk of the expressman in the shed. The parrot's farewell and advice was the gist of what passed between two employees during the morning which the feathered talker had stored away until train time before repeating.

O for an iceberg or two at control!
O for a vat that at midday the dew cambers!
O for a pleasure trip up to the pole!

Grimsky Farm Service Force News & Views

Girls of the Farm Service Force Center in the Niagara Peninsula are preparing for next Saturday, when, at the St. Catharines armories, they will participate in "Farmette Recognition Day." Each of the seventeen camps in the district will be represented in a short skit or act, and each camp has chosen a representative who will represent it in the contest for "Miss Farmette, 1942." The girl so chosen will address Princess Elizabeth via the CBC. The program will be broadcast, and a recording sent overseas, together with a gift of Ontario fruit.

The Grimsby Camp has selected Miss Annebelle Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Meyer of Toronto, to carry the local honours. Miss Meyer was selected for her spirit and willingness to work and her leadership in the social life of the camp.

In addition to Miss Meyer's part in the proceedings, the girls are preparing a skit on "It Can Be Done," the poem by Edgar Guest. The skit is a pantomime. The skit is being directed by Miss Audrey Headley of Ottawa, and there are thirteen players in the cast.

The day will start with a tour of some of the more important camps. The visitors will be Hon. P. M. Dewar, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Alex McLaren, of the Ontario Department of Labour, who has been largely responsible for the establishment of the Farm Service Force in Ontario, Dr. G. F. Rodgers, Deputy Minister of Education and several other dignitaries. All members of the Ontario Government have been invited to attend. "Miss Farmette, 1942" will receive, from Mayor Charles Daley of St. Catharines, a key to the city on behalf of the entire Farm Service Force, and later in the evening a dance will be held, with members of the three branches of the service attending as partners for the girls.

Congratulations are being extended to Miss Margaret McLeod of Ottawa, who chalked up the camp record here with seventeen baskets of cherries picked in one day.

Of the seventeen camps in Ontario, the Grimsby camp is the largest. The enrollment is now ninety-seven. Several of the girls will be going home for a two week holiday now that the cherries are finished, but most of them will be returning for the peaches.

Among the population of almost a hundred girls at the local camp, there are fifteen British war guests who are doing their bit in Canadian orchards just as their sisters are helping on the farms of Great Britain. One of them, Barbara Lancaster, comes from Grimsby, Lincolnshire, in England. The other girls hail from many points in Ontario. Four are from Cochrane, two from Haliburton, two from New Liskeard, twelve from the Dominion's capital, five from Montreal, and even two from as far away as Halifax. Six of the farmettes are teachers, and nine out of the staff of eleven at the camp are also teachers.

In addition to these committees, there is an "active service committee" made up of Lions who are now serving in the armed forces. They include Col. Walter W. Johnson, Captain Van der R. Farrell, Flying Officer L. A. Jamieson, Major G. A. Sinclair, Flying Officer Victor Thompson, Captain C. Lloyd Jones and Lieutenant David T. Bell.

At Moore's Theatre

"Appearing at Moore's Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, July 29 and 30, is the film "Adventures of Martin Eden", another Jack London novel transferred to the screen. Starring Glenn Ford and Claire Trevor it deals with the inhuman treatment given the hands aboard one of Pierre Watkin's ships, captained by Ian MacDonald, who has had his troubles with Ford since their teen age days. Stuart Erwin is sent to jail for ten years for mutiny on board the ship and Ford, who has written the whole story from experience, sets out to vindicate him. He finds the going tough when he tries to convince people of the truth. Even Frank Conroy, an author Ford has cherished, puts a damper on the story. But the ship owner's daughter takes an interest in Ford, as does the author, the one making love while the other encourages him to write fiction. Ford becomes a successful author in time and his yarn about Watkin's ship is published. He is asked to deny it, but when he gets on the stand he admits to the truth, thereby upholding the faith Miss Trevor and her brother, Stuart Erwin, have had in him. This is a Jack London classic which will win the praise of his readers. An excellent supporting cast includes Evelyn Keyes, Stuart Erwin, Dickie Moore (all grown-up), Ian MacDonald, Frank Conroy and Rafaela Ottiano.

Away Back When

er Johnny Hand, with his little short step walk and square cut chin waker. I just do and that is all. There is a great story behind the Hand family and their fishing fleet, including the time Gussie fell out of the boat. I'll tell you about it some day.

They chained them to the seats and laid them in the aisles, at Moore's Theatre on Monday and Tuesday nights, with that technicolor production of the "Gay Nineties", "My Gal Sal". It was a truly depicted picture of the luring times and the festive frivolities of the "Great White Way", when Boss Tweed and Tammany Hall held sway, "In Little Old New York."

One scene in particular brought back a flood of memories to me. It was the old time barber shop quartette singing most melodiously that famous old song "On the Banks of the Wabash". It made me think of all the barber shop choirs that Grimsby used to have; Tom Stone, Watt Nelles, Bill House, Bert Nelles, "Shine" Tufford, Jack Walker and not forgetting Charlie McCartney who was always about four notes off key and looking for "The Lost Chord". When those boys and a host of others went into high they could really warble "Sweet Adeline" under "The Harvest Moon" while peddling "A Bicycle Built For Two" along "The Banks of Loch Lomond". Those were the days of real fun and real singers.

I'm sorry, but Mr. Frank Woolverton will have to wait until next week for "Memories". So long. Join the Forces and buy War Certificates, or else you won't have any "Away Back When" to tell about when you get old.

Ambulance

sweet shop has let me have a ration of barley sugar for my patients as they are not allowed to smoke in the ambulance but now that we are on a definite ration that must stop. However I still have son's acid drops which an American billet gave me, they had been put on the ship at Durban.

Cigarettes and tobacco are very plentiful, I think the shortage was always an artificial one caused by people smoking such a lot. The tea ration is ample, more than enough, we don't always take it although we always give the billets morning tea and tonight I am giving tea to the players in a tennis match. A.T.S. vs. Civil Defense.

We are all most grateful to you for your generous help to the Red Cross and to raid victims. We have been exceptionally fortunate here, we personally are very lucky only losing front door and back windows, the doors possibly my fault as I forgot to leave them open when I went on duty, I night after night in the Blitz when we had alerts with nothing at all dropped.

Now that the news is so bad again the only thing is to work for all one is worth and hang on like a proverbial British Bulldog. Again thanking you for the lovely Ambulance.

Yours gratefully,
Mary Milne.

I know Grimsby, Lincolnshire very well.
